

Characteristics of the Influence of Human Beings' Volitional Actions upon Existence from the Viewpoint of Koranic Verses and Hadiths, with an Emphasis upon Islamic Lifestyle

Mehdi Jafarzadeh<sup>1</sup>

Mohammad Hossein Ranjbar Hosseini<sup>2</sup>

Mehdi Nosratiyan<sup>3</sup>

Abstract

From the vantage point of Koranic verses and hadiths, existential influence of human's good and evil deeds has some characteristics. Knowing these characteristics is the first step towards the design and social acceptance of Islamic behavioral patterns and lifestyle. According to this study, which has collected its data with the library research method and conducted analysis and made assessments with the analytic-documentary method, the influence is mainly characterized by the fact that the correlation between existential influences of good volitional actions and flow of blessings in society is certain, but the correlation between evil volitional actions and blight occurrence is not certain and may be averted for some reasons. Insignificance of worldly enjoyment for being a good human, meta-gender influence of volitional actions upon existence, proportion and similarity between volitional actions and existential suffering and the harmony of existential sufferings arising from volitional actions with the Best System are among other characteristics of the influence. Thus, Islamic lifestyle will have the most and most perfect harmony with the system of creation, and will direct the most benefit towards human beings and other creatures.

Key Words: Islamic lifestyle, human volitional action, the system of creation, existential influence.

1 . Corresponding Author, Researcher, Al-i Yasin Institute of Islamic Lifestyle, Qom, Iran.

2 . Assistant Professor, Member of Academic Staff, University of the Qur'an and Hadith, Qom, Iran.

3 . Assistant Professor, Member of Academic Staff, University of the Qur'an and Hadith, Qom, Iran.